The sepoy seems to have been shot by accident, the bullet that killed him being intended for the jemadar's brother. The deceased Agent was one of those three or four Europeans who have penetrated, on their own responsibility so to speak, through the heart of China, and his route will befound marked on many modern maps of the country. He travelled during this perilous journey in the guise of a Chinaman, and so imminent was his danger. while engaged in this undertaking, that he carried poison secreted about his person to enable him to save himself from torture by the Chinese should his nationality be discovered. Other equally perilous exploring journeys were made by Mr Cooper in Thibet and elsewhere. His knowledge of China and Chinese, and of the border tribes, must have made him a particularly valuable officer in the position he occupied,

Amoy. (From a Correspondent.)

The following short sermon has recently been pasted up in Amoy and its neighbourhood. It is accompanied by a woodcut of two Buildhist worthis, one named anshan and the other Shib- ê, who are laugh ing at the folly of mankind in general which entails on them so much misery and sorrow, when all could be so easily averted, as they may, by the simple practice of Benevolence and Forbearance.

I.—Be ye forbearing, and misfortune will henceforth find no place wherein to flourish. Step aside, * and do not always be contending for the mastery over others. Be patient, theft. and the fiery pit will change for you into a lotus pool: † to yield is the way of those who would rectify their conduct. Let others swear at, or get angry with you; do you only strive to be indulgent and to get fat. I For should they succeed in illusing you, the Gods will see them, and Heaven and Earth will know it; whereas you, by practising Benevolence and Forbearance, will assuredly reap the greater advantages. If men injure me, or beat me, or curse me, or cheat me, how shall I punish them? Our master has said,— "Bar with them, endure them, keep away from them, take no no ice of them; and then, after several years, look upon them once again, in their torn garments, eating coarse food, and with the marks of tears that have dried upon their faces. If any one comes to curse me, I merely thank him; to beat me, I lie down ready for his blows. This saves him much trouble and me much vexation of spirit." Such advice is as a priceless jewel; he who can forbear will pass a happy life indeed.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION. (Before His Honor James Russell, Esq., Acting Pulsne Judge.) July 2, 1878.

Kwok Acheong v. Xavier, $151.48.—This was a claim for goods sold and delivered and the hire of a steam launch. The defendant was sued as a partner in the firm of Dunphy & Co., ironfounders, &c. fendant denied liability, saying that at the time the debt was contracted, he was only an employee in the firm, that he did not become a partner until the 16th February of this year, and produced a deed of partnership in proof of the truth of what he said. Mr Wotton, who appeared for the plaintiff, called Mr Andrew Johnson, the manager, and Mr Holmes, the foreman, of the West Point Iron Foundry, to show that the defendant had been always considered a partner since July of last year, and that the late Mr Dunphy had frequently alluded to him

Mr Xavier was then examined. He said that he had been an employee of Mr Dunphy from July 1877, but not a partner; he had known Mr Dunphy for over 12 vears and had therefore lent him money to buy the machinery. He admitted that On earth there is joy and there is sorrow; he had never received any wages, and said

In cross-examination he said he got thing for the hire of the machinery, in reality he advanced the money for its purchase, and as Mr Dunphy did not pay back the money he took over the machinery. He swore positively that he was not a partner, and denied having told Mr Caldwell in July of last year that he was so. CORRESPONDENCE.

THE SHEK-O MURDER. To the aditor of the "CHINA MAIL." Hongkong, July 3, 1878. SIR, -My opinion of Mr Pope Hennessy as legislator and governor of a British Hennessy's impolitic meddling and inter-Deceased was employed in the godown of meddling in various matters connected with tional questions, and many other matters The Jury, after hearing the evidence of have all been handled in such unsubstantial Dr Horck, and a coolie who saw the acci- fashion, more like the work of a dreaming Hankow having, therefore, turned out to be dent, recurred a verdict of accidental death. theorist than that of a practical legislator and diplomatist, that the Governor has earned for himself no small amount of ill will, besides having alienated from his cause many influential colonists whose various interests and personal wishes ranked them among the supporters of his policy.

Granting all this however, Mr Pope Hennessy, as Governor of Hongkong, has certain Thomas Ferrell and John Campbell, fire- rights and privileges, which have within assisted him in his final deliberations on the passed on Choung Ashiu at the late Criminal Sessions, to penal servitude for life.

Now, although Mr Hennessy's right of exercising his prerogative cannot justly be questioned, his action in the matter is of course fair game for public criticism.

Both in your own columns and in those of your morning contemporary, Mr Henbeen summarily condemned. As a matter of fact several days before it was announced that the sentence of death had been commuted, the Daily Press had the impertinence and bad taste to print a leader on the subject, which under all circumstances, was a most unjustifiable proceeding. The game is hardly worth powder and shot, and if it were otherwise, I should scarcely feel justified in "showing up," through the medium of your columns, this weak-minded ebullition which your contemporary is pleased to consider a leading article. With your own editorial I have no such scruples. Eschewing the use of stale truisms and well-worn platitudes (the stock-in-trade of the rival shop) your article is a fairly comprehensive review, in condensed form, of the salient features of the case, and the deductions you draw therefrom can hardly be cavilled at. You are, however, in my opinion, greatly mistaken if you imagine that the respite of the Shek-o murderer will be indignantly protested against "by every one in the Colony who is not troubled with doubts as to the propriety of capital punishment," The respite was confidently expected, and will be warmly approved of, by a great many colonists whose general views are not strongly pro-Chinese; and who furthermore, are stanch advocates of the punishment by death for murder being kept on the penal code. It seems to me that the question whether His Excellency is for, or against capital, punishment may be safely left out of this discussion.

The following meaningless remarks which I am compelled to quote from the Daily Press-" We fail to see any extenuating circumstances in the case, and, to be consistent, Mr Hennessy can never consent to any execution taking place in this colony during his administration," contain the real gist of the question in dispute. Mr Hennessy and the members of the Executive Council (the last-named body comprises the legal ability of Hongkong, be it remembered) did not fail to find a good excuse for tempering justice with mercy, and although I may question the wisdom and utility of their decision, and consider their leniency ill advised, yet I should consider myself the veriest dullard did I fail to recognise the grounds on which the respite has been granted. I have no wish to whitewash the wretched man who has so narrowly escaped a horrible death, nor to understate the savage character of the crime for which he was condemned to die. It is only fair to remember however, that the crime, so far as the evidence went to show, was entirely unpremeditated, and also that the prisoner had no animosity or ill feeling whatever to the wretched woman who became a victim to his of assistance. insensate fury.

To those who have any acquaintance with the usual procedure at home, it will be no news to hear that want of premeditation is almost the only valid excuse which the Home Secretary will accept, for recommending any condemned oriminal to mercy. To argue that no murderer can be consistently executed during Mr Hennessy's administration because this man has been respited, as your contemporary does, is an exhibition of senility painful to witness. Much more painful is the communication in last night's Mail from "A Juror." Any sensible person would imagine that of all people in the colony, the men who officiated on the jury in Cheung Ashin's trial, should rejoice most at the death sentence having been departed from. Your correspondent thinks otherwise apparently, and displays spirit in this altogether unnecessary letter. which is much to be deprecated. The value of a "Juror's" opinions may be best gathered from his last paragraph, in which he states that should he again be summoned on the jury, he will never acquiesce in a verdict consequences serious enough in themselves delly entertainment. So says a cors 28, Ataula 11, of guilty against a native, no matter how clear the case may be. This is a nice sort of person to have on a tribunal where man's life or liberty happened to be at stake. Your correspondent was wise in hiding his identity under a nom de plume. On his own showing he is not trustworthy; he knows nothing or cares still less about the sacred obligations of an oath, and vet he ventures to prate about "Scriptural law."

As I have already stated I neither admire Mr Pope Hennessy, nor his so-called policy, and I am candidly of opinion that his removal to a higher sphere of action would materially enhance the interests of this colony. But we must not be unjust in our strictures. this Shek-o case he may not have acted wisely; but be that as it may, he has only used the power which fairly belonged to him, and I have as yet seen no reasoning to induce me to believe that his prerogative has been unfairly strained.

The public press here would consult its own dignity in the future, by using a little less vituperation and a wee thing more of sound judgment, fair play, and dommon prerogative of mercy.

Japan.

The Tokio newspapers announce that the Mikado will leave the capital for his tour through the northern and western provinces on the 16th of August next, and will be absent from Tokio about three months. His Majesty's journey, as at first projected, will probably be curtailed, and there is a doubt whether he will proceed so far south as Kiôto. (Tokio Times.)

The event which has most interested mercantile Yokohama has been the de-

As she made, from Hongkong hither, the fastest trip on record, she is expected to land her fragrant burden in San Francisco in some hitherto unbeaten A good deal of grumbling was heard on the day of her departure,-not without cause. She stood too long on th'order of her going, instead of going at once, and merchants and bankers lost a night's untroubled rest, from the Agent's | may perhaps lead to its identification. insbility or neglect to fix the hour of her departure. Advertised to go at daylight on the 19th, she did not leave till nearly noon, and but for an act of kindly courtesy on the part of one of the gentlemen in the office, who went round the settlement at midnight to communicate the fact unofficially that her departure would be postponed, no one would have known it and corressubject, to commute the sentence of death other descriptions, though firm, show no pondence clerks and deputy-accountants would have been out of their beds all night. It was bad enough, as it was. No official notice was given, and yet, surely, the impossibility of her getting off at daybreak next morning must have been known to the Agent (if not, it should have been) before 10 p.m. The commercial public justly felt aggrieved at this omission, and though peace was patched up, in the way we have mentioned, this harmony requires to be properly fostered, if the Company and its constituents are to remain on good terms. The same fault has to be noticed occasionally at another centre of trans-pacific dispatch, and if both Companies are not more careful in future, the Banks may be roused to interfere. The despatch of these steamers, running as they do at unfixed dates, is virtually under the control of these latter institutions, as we may, perhaps, some day indicate.
